

Which enquiry questions help teach which concept?

Can you really trust eye-witnesses to tell you the truth about X?

Was one American General really so important in causing the USSR and USA to fall out?

Was Cuba the closest the world came to nuclear war?

Did anyone really care about health in the Middle Ages?

Who should survive a re-hang in the National Portrait Gallery: Drake or Raleigh?

How good your German is: Can you produce a textbook caption for this cartoon from 1924?

Was public health in the early modern period really that different to public health in the Middle Ages?

How far did Helga Koller's life change after 1933?

Why is it difficult to work out who won WW2?

When was the best time to go to prison 1750-1900?

Which individual should go on the back of a fiver?

Did the 19th century see the biggest change in policing?

Who was the most to blame for the Berlin crisis?

How far did crime prevention change in the later Middle Ages?

How do historians disagree about X when they look at the same sources?

Was there anything new about 20th century crime?

How far does King John deserve his reputation?

How real was détente?

Which was the greatest problem facing Elizabeth in 1558?

Why were there such huge changes to medicine the 19th century?

What should a BBC web-page tell us about the problems facing Elizabeth in 1558?

How seriously did the Barons challenge John?

How would you structure a documentary about threats to power in Germany in 1923?

What was the wobbliest domino in Asia 1945-55?

How accurately does a 1930s film portray why England went to war with Spain?

How accurately does the end of Robin Hood Prince of Thieves portray King John?

Was Elizabeth's reign a golden age of culture?

What were the consequences of the Hungarian uprising?

How serious a challenge did Elizabeth I face from Mary Queen of Scots?

Do changes in Public Health after 1900 simply tell the story of progress?

To what extent do historians disagree about the influence of the Gestapo?

What made the Northern Earls Revolt?

Why did so few people oppose the Nazis?

How big a threat were the 'new crimes' in the Early Modern Period to the law-makers?

Did the 19th century see the biggest change in medicine?

Is the story of policing in the 20th century one of progress?

How far do you agree with a young German's memoir about life in 1933?

Was Henry Metlemann a typical young German?